FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS ABOUT ABOVEGROUND LINERS

QUESTION 1:

Why do the aboveground standard liners fit both a 48" and 52" wall height?

ANSWER 1:

Standard aboveground liners will fit both a 48" and 52" wall height due to the fact that it takes into account a 4" cove. Therefore the liner will fit a 48" aboveground liner without a cove and a 52" aboveground pool with or without cove. Cove can be either sand or styrofoam.

QUESTION 2:

What are the different types of aboveground liner beading?

ANSWER 2:

There are 3 types of aboveground liner installations available.

i) Overlap: These types of liners typically range between 48" and 52". On these types of liners the liner goes up and over the top lip of the pool wall. It then comes down over the edge on the outside of the pool. The liner is normally secured with a plastic clamping method that holds it in place. (See B-1752 on Page B-4)

ii) Standard Bead: Standard bead liners install into a track or "snaps in" to a channel or hanging strip. (See B-1756 or B-1755 on Page B-4)

iii) U-Bead: U-bead resembles an upside down J. As a result this type of bead can often be referred to as a J-Bead. The liners are generally easy to install as the bead simply hooks over the top of the pool wall. This type of liner does not require a bead retainer like the standard bead or a plastic clamp like the overlap liners.
